ACT count low

A seemingly unfair emphasis being placed on American College Test (ACT) scores, without sufficient explanatory data, may be influencing Navy families involved in relocation to National Space Technology Laboratories (NSTL) to think twice about buying homes in Hancock County.

The adverse publicity being afforded the Bay-Waveland area was initially unearthed by two local realtors, Ames Kergosien of L. L. Kergosien and Son, and Mrs. Nel Frisbie of Dantagnan Realty, Inc., who had noticed that settlement inquiries were diminishing in spite of a heightening of navy activity at the base.

On suggestion of the Hancock Chamber of Commerce, the realtors visited the site and heard first hand of the possible unfavorable impression being generated by the Bay-Waveland school system's apparent inadequacies.

The statistical facts supporting the claim were not generated by local navy office personnel, but instead are contained in Volume Two of an Environmental Impact Statement dated June, 1975, which is being made available to families moving to the new Oceanographic Center at their present job location in Maryland.

Local school officials, when shown the report yesterday, not only took issue with the figures contained therein, but also indicated that without further amplification and explanation it was far from being a good educational quality indicator.

The report, only showing public schools, lists school name, enrollment, capacity, total courses, pupils per teacher, ACT mean scores, percentage of teachers with A, AA, or AAA certificates, number of library books, and expenses per pupil.

It fails to list year of the report, whether statistics were garnered for all schools; the academic year in which each pupil was engaged when he or she took the test; the percentage of federal, state, or local funds involved in individual expenses per pupil - in relation to transportation costs; courses offered; the total percentage of eligible school enrollment that actually took the test; the percentage of eligible school enrollment who were preparing to enter vocational school and therefore did not sit for the examination, and other less obvious considerations.

On a national basis, the ACT mean score is 18.8. In Mississippi, the mean is 15.8, and according to figures gained from the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce, the Louisiana state average is 17.8.

Averages given in the report include, Bay St. Louis - 16.7; Hancock North Central School - 14.0; Picayune - 18.0; Pass Christian - 15.0; Gulfport - 20.2;

Long Beach - 19.0; Biloxi - 19.8; Harrison County - 17.0; Pearl River County - 17.0; Poplarville - 16.9.

Other averages gained from the chamber include, Coast Episcopal High - 23.2; St. Stanislaus College - 19.2; and Slidell - 19.5.

KERSHNER'S COMMENTARY

By Dr. Howard E. Kershner

Inflation Is Never Necessary

At the close of World War II Germany had reached the lowest economic level of any industrial nation in history. Her factories had been reduced to rubble. Many of her business buildings and a large percentage of housing was in ruins. The entire country was looted of much of its movable wealth. The nation was bisected into an East and West zone and the West zone occupied by four hostile powers. To climax it all, 12 million refugees from Poland and East Germany were thrust into West Germany without any provision for housing, clothing and food.

At this juncture, General Lucius Clay, the American officer in charge, told the German authorities that in order to pay current expenses and start the wheels of industry revolving once more, "You will have to resort to deficit spending." Ludwig Erhardt, Minister of Finance, backed by Chancellor Conrad Adenauer, refused to do it. General Clay said, quoting from memory, "But my advisors tell me there is no other way." To this, Erhardt replied, again quoting from memory, "My advisors tell me the same thing but we are not going to do it. What we can't pay for, we will do without. We will not engage in deficit spending."

In addition, Germany sold her government owned industries back to private owners and abandoned most of her regulations and controls of business activities.

Sound money and freedom resulted in almost instant revival of industry. There was another important fact. The people knew that government had nothing; that they could not hope for relief or unemployment benefits. They knew that if they stayed alive that it would have to be by their own efforts. Consequently, those who had jobs worked hard to keep them, and those who did not, were willing to go anywhere and to do anything that offered, whether they had done it before or not. This willingness to work hard at anything that came to hand was a large part of the miraculous German recovery. In a few short years the country became the most prosperous nation in Europe, if not in the whole world. The secret was sound money, freedom and a willingness to work hard at any kind of job available.

Take another example. When Napoleon assumed authority at the close of the French Revolution, he found the nation prostrate. His advisors urged him to borrow money and engage in deficit spending. He refused, saying, "What we cannot pay for we will do without." He fought the long series of wars on hard money with the result that when he was finally defeated at Waterloo France recovered very quickly because there was no overhanging burden of debt and inflation.

If ever inflation would seem to have been necessary these German and French experiences would seem to have been the times. Even in these desperate situations, however, sound money, balanced budgets and no indebtedness proved to be the way to quickly revive prosperity.

Kennedy attacks Ford vetoes at Council on Aging conference

Attending the National Council on the Aging 25th anniversary conference in Washington, D. C. were Mrs. Lucille Feeney, nutrition director, and Mrs. Eve McDonald, Hancock County Senior Citizen Center of the Southern Miss. Planning & Development District. The theme of this conference was "Aging In America's Third Century."

Among the speakers addressing this group of over 1,000 persons representing the elderly in the United States were Senator Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts and Congressman Morris Udall of Arizona.

Both men castigated the administration's proposals boosting defense spending and oil tariffs while vetoes were applied to health services and aging programs to "keep the lid on spending and inflation."

"I am not going to be one vote in the U. S. Senate that thinks that we're going to fight this battle (inflation) on the backs of the elderly people," said Senator Kennedy.

Senator Kennedy serves on the Senate Special Committee on Aging and was author of the bill providing hot meals for the elderly, and is currently planning, with Senator Church, to introduce legislation immediately to freeze the part A medicare payment which had been scheduled to rise by more than 10 percent.

Mrs. Feeney and Mrs.

McDonald also visited the offices of the Senators and Congressmen from Mississippi thanking them for their support of projects for the elderly, children and handicapped through Title XX funding.

Mississippi was allocated $27.2 million for comprehensive annual services for her people. These federal dollars are available for 25 cents each to communities wishing to provide social services such as special services to the developmentally disabled child, deaf, elderly, adoption, foster care, health support services, homemaker services, housing improvement, information and referral, hot meals, protective services, blind services, transportation, vocational rehabilitation, services to mentally retarded, diagnostic and evaluation services, and others.

Remember! You have the right to vote for anybody in November.

"Please remember this. It is your Constitutional right to vote for anybody you choose. It doesn't matter who you voted for in the primary election this past summer. On November Fourth, it's your right to vote for whoever you want. And nobody can take that right away from you."

We ask you to consider voting for Gil Carmichael for governor. Why? Because Carmichael has more to offer Mississippi than the other candidates.

Carmichael just doesn't talk about better jobs and higher pay, he has good ideas to produce better jobs and higher pay for all Mississippians.

It's your decision and your vote. Nobody can take that away from you. But you can throw it away yourself if you are not careful. First, listen to the candidates. Then vote for the one who makes the most sense for Mississippi. Gil Carmichael, he's hard to beat.

IRS gets there first

Mrs. Lou Wilkerson of Bay St. Louis, won the State Item football pool last week, with an entry having 12 correct answers and only six points off complete scores.

Informed of her win by letter Friday, Mrs. Wilkerson discovered she could not spend her winnings until she completed and returned the IRS tax deduction form enclosed with the notice. Uncle Sam, it seems, will deduct his cut before she gets what is left over.

We agree:

Vote for the Best Man ...not the party.

As Democrats, we believe it is more important to consider the individual candidate than the party. Political parties are okay. But it's people who get things done. That's why we are putting party aside and voting for the man -- Gil Carmichael. Why? Because Carmichael has more to offer Mississippi than the other candidates. He just doesn't talk about better jobs and the good life for all Mississippians. Carmichael has plans that can bring it about. Do the other candidates have anything besides fancy talk? And Carmichael has promised this. His administration as governor will not be one-sided. He wants to bring in concerned Democrats, Independents and Republicans to help get this state moving forward. Gil Carmichael, a hard man to beat.

Mississippi and the artist of the state, featuring such nationally known artists as Leontyne Price - Opera, Susan Walters - Pianist, Van Cliburn - pianist, Carl Sandburg and others.

A weekly segment will feature local citizens of the Gulf Coast area offering candid and enlightening information concerning the area's history in all phases.

This afternoon's program will feature music of the 30's with original Benny Goodman recordings. The big band, swing, fox-trot, and jazz influences of the decade will prove most entertaining.

The Junior Auxiliary's special guest for this segment will be Norton Haas, a life long resident of Hancock County. Of special interest will be his reminiscences of life in the 30's, especially in the Kiln area.

Those interested are not urged to listen, but to participate by contacting Mrs. Woodfin with information for future programs. Guests on the program are welcomed.

How To Control Your Greatest Asset

T-I-M-E!

By
Dr. Whitt N. Schultz
Kenilworth, Illinois

Copyright 1975

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Schultz is a successful business executive, noted writer, lecturer, teacher and career consultant. He has worked with Earl Nightingale and served on the executive staff of W. Clement Stone's Achievement Motivation Program, Bell Telephone and Encyclopedia Britannica. He is now vice president of Executive Careers, Inc., Wilmette, Ill.

Note: Readers can secure a free list of personal success developmental materials written by Dr. Schultz by writing to him at this address: Dr. Whitt N. Schultz, P. O. Box 100, Dept. SCE, Kenilworth, Illinois 60043. Please always send a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

T-I-M-E!

It's your greatest asset. How do you control it? My studies show if you are a typical manager you're interrupted, on the average, every eight minutes, all day long. Try as hard as I do, I seldom have as long as 20 minutes of uninterrupted time to think, to plan and to manage.

It seems to me that most of us, all day long, are "fighting time." There's never enough time! I'm sure you'll agree.

Well, what can an alert person, in today's jet-speed world, do about conserving his (or her) time?

Here are some positive actions that help my clients and me (may I suggest that you give them a try?):

- 1) Identify your major time wasters.
 - For example, gossiping; overlong coffee breaks; sleeping too much; being constantly late—then having to stand in lines with the crowds, etc.
 - One friend of mine always manages to get to his favorite restaurant moments before it opens. Thus he gets the table of his choice. He gets served swiftly. And, the food is fresher and healthier.
- 2) Plan your objectives.
 - Know what you want to do . . . and need to do.
 - Calculate the time required to accomplish your specific objectives. You'll be pleased by how you'll find the time to get jobs done.
 - The President of a multimillion dollar electronics firm said to me once: "I pace myself, like a runner, Jim Ryun, holder of the world's mile record. By pacing myself, I speed up on the big daily tasks . . . and relax on the little ones. It works," he added.
- 3) Organize to carry out your plan.
 - A friend of mine, who is a top editor and writer, has to produce a bright, readable column 365 days a year. That's a BIG job. But, he's been doing it for 10 years. And, he's won a Pulitzer Prize, and he has never missed a deadline.
 - He's organized!
 - For example, he keeps his desk neat and orderly. His many pencils are always sharpened and at his fingertips. He has plenty of copy paper handy. And, knowing that it's difficult to start writing, he always leaves an unfinished sentence in his typewriter. Then, when he sits down to work, he completes the sentence . . . and this gets him going for the day. And, "getting going" is often a time saver. Action pays off.
- 4) Utilize the strengths around you.
 - So often when you ask for help, it's almost always there: "Ask and ye shall receive."
 - Seek ways to save time.
 - Ask those around you how they conserve time. You'll get many good ideas from them.
- 5) Forget these major myths and misconceptions about time:
 - "Time flies."
 - "There is not time enough."
 - "You can make up time."
 - "Doing the job right is as important as doing the right job."
 - "The harder you work, the more you get done."
 - "By delegating, you save worry, responsibility and time."

Try these 5 ways to conserve and utilize time. They'll help you! "Time is precious, son. Put a high value on it. Once it's gone you'll never get it back. So, use your time well."

My dad said that to me years ago.

It's even truer today!

Pooch of the Week

Rebels, Gamecocks enliven Jackson

UNIVERSITY, Miss.—Ole Miss moves outside the Southeastern Conference for the fifth and final time of the season Saturday when the Johnny Rebs host South Carolina in Jackson.

The game in Mississippi Memorial Stadium, the first of three this year for Coach Ken Cooper's team, will get underway at 1:30 p.m.

This one is a game that could be difficult to rate. For while the Gamecocks move in sporting a sparkling 4-1 record under new head coach Jim Carlen, their lone loss was by 29-20, to the same Georgia team the Rebels spanked here last Saturday, 28-13.

Both games were road games for the Athens Bulldogs—two weeks apart.

Carolina dunked Virginia last Saturday evening in Columbia, 41-14, and Ole Miss scouts came away with tremendous respect for the Gamecock offense.

And the folk at Georgia warned the Rebs about the Carolina attitude. "They have tremendous team spirit. We had 'em down 28-7 and they made it close at the end," advised the report.

For his Rebs, Cooper was delighted. "We beat a quality team in Georgia. We were able to cut off their running game after the first quarter, and our offense pretty much controlled the game after an uncertain start."

The Bulldogs had netted 198 yards rushing through the first period, had a net of 234 at the half, and ended with 244 yards.

Thus far in six games, the Rebels are 2-0 at home, in Mississippi, are 0-4 on the road.

Lagarde takes third in Winter tourney

Sixteen-year-old Lis Lagarde of Bay St. Louis received the third place trophy recently in the 16-18-year-olds singles competition at the Alabama Fall-Winter Circuit held at Mobile, Ala.

Miss Lagarde captured the third place trophy after defeating Patti Easley 6-1, 6-1 Oct. 11 in a rain-postponed match.

She advanced to the second round of play Oct. 5 after defeating her first round opponent Alice Heggaman 6-1, 6-2, on Oct. 5.

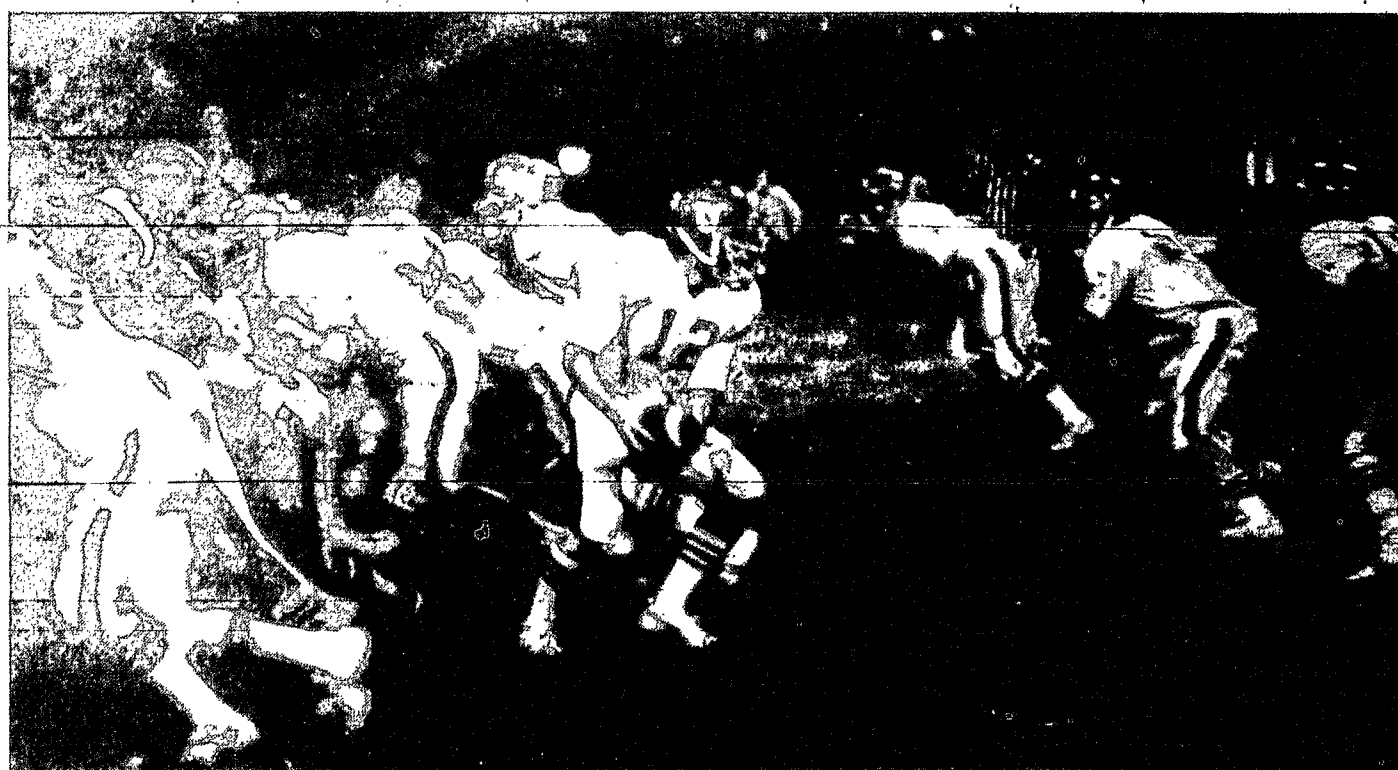

Miss Lagarde settled for the third place trophy after losing to Mary Grafton 6-2, 5-7, 6-3 in a grueling three hour match. The loss was a reversal of an earlier decision taken by Miss Lagarde in the Mirrow Lake Tournament 8-0, 6-1 over Miss Grafton which resulted in her first place finish.

Lis, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lagarde of 237 St. Charles Street, is a sophomore at Our Lady's Academy.

Fishing is getting better by the minute. Not only green trout fishing is good but speckle trout have been caught up Jourdan River all the past week. They were caught by trolling, on dead and live shrimp. Other salt water fish caught were red fish, sheepshead, croakers, and white trout.

For you fly fishermen, green trout are hitting. Never mind about the bait as long as it has action, they will take it.

If you don't know, find out. Kaufman Bayou is down Middle River. Still fishermen are catching red fish and sheepshead right at the mouth of Kaufman Bayou.

Fly fished at Double Bayou and caught beaucoup green trout, but the tide must be falling.

Collect a lot of items for this column from Eddie Marquez's Bar. Eddie, the owner, does mostly floundering and some speckle trout fishing. Don't underate Eddie he gets his share of fish.

Speaking about Eddie met a character named Frank Blanton of Driftwood Motel. He is a retired Highway Patrolman who worked with the late Bill Kenney. Frank gets his share of fish.

SPORTSMAN OF THE WEEK—Mrs. Louise Ewin of Shoreline Park, shows drum she caught last weekend at mouth of Jourdan River. Fish, which was caught on 10 pound test line, measured 37 inches long and weighed 24 pounds.

Cliff Foster of Memphis, Tenn., has returned home after a visit to the Bay. He and his wife got their share of fish while vacationing. Cliff is also a green trout fisherman, one of the best around Memphis.

To prove that speckles are up Jourdan River right now, Harry Roman and Hoke Ogden made a good catch last week. Harry said they were good size. That's enough for me.

Bill Keating and Althe and sons are coming to Bay St. Louis to live. They love fishing and know they can find it on the Gulf Coast. Welcome to our section, folks.

Ivo Stakelum is a member of the Bay-Waveland Gun and Rod Club. He fishes and hunts. That is all it takes to enjoy the sports that are connected with our section of Gulf Coast. Gladys also fishes.

E. George Johnston and Marie, his wife, are of Long Beach, Miss. They do both fresh and salt water fishing. Lets get together, folks.

Howard Lindley, auto body mechanic with Turan Lane Chevrolet said he does any kind of fishing and gets his share when the fish are cooperating.

Walter Gollivas, Jr., was bragging about being from the Irish Channel in New Orleans. Knows June and Dan Haggerty, my daughter, and son-in-law. Walter fishes. Catches anything that bites, he claims.

Met Theo. W. Campbell, C.S.D. Agency Ass. from Jackson, Miss. When not working Theo is at the end of a fishing pole. Catches his share of the finny tribe.

Christa Keys, Julia Schubert, Capt. of the Dyn-O-Mite, 37 ft. cruiser of Bayou Bluffs with Mr. and Mrs. George Shannon of Bay St. Louis, loaded the boat as they put it with big Reds. They were caught on dead shrimp.

Nellie McKean became the grandmother of 14 bass. The last boy was born Sept. 13, 1975.

also has two granddaughters. She says if don't make me feel any older, however. She brags about being only 64.

Did you know that the squirrel season is now open. There are plenty squirrel in our woods. The bushy tails make good eating. The season in La. also opened on Oct. 4 and will remain open thru Jan. 11. The rabbit season will extend thru February 28, according to J. Burton Angelle who also said that the gallinule season opened on Sept. 20 and will last through Nov. 28.

Met two men up Pearl River who had 15 bass-three of which weighed 3 pounds each. They caught them in Mulatto Bayou while casting. One was using a criddle minnow which we used 30 years ago. It is a wonderful bait but hard to get now-a-days.

Surface baits like the Repala or Hula Popper will get real results when worked properly. The old saying "The bigger the bait the bigger the fish" still holds good, even when using popping bugs.

The cooler weather ahead is good for all types of salt water fishing. Fishing on the bottom pays off. All that is needed is a couple pounds of frozen shrimp, a casting rod and a large enough line to hold large reds and up to 4 lb. speckle trout, plus a couple of flounders. Flounders are a flat fish and hold to the bottom.

If you tie into a school of speckles stay with them. Let the boat drift and keep casting. They usually go with the tide. They can be caught by casting with lures or with live shrimp.
